[ATLANTA, GA] 100 Black Men of America, Inc. and 100 Black Men of Atlanta, Inc. will co-host a special town hall meeting on the health system reform that is being debated nationally. Dr. David Satcher, former Surgeon General of the United States, will be among the distinguished healthcare panelists, who will be discussing this critical topic with members of the Atlanta community. Moderated by CNN anchor Tony Harris, the town hall meeting will be held Thursday, Sept. 24, from 6 to 8:30 p.m., at Atlanta's Hyatt Regency hotel and broadcast live at www.100blackmen-atlanta.com. Aetna is the title sponsor.

"Healthcare reform is a critical issue facing our entire nation," said 100 Black Men of America Chairman Albert Dotson, Jr. "We recognize the importance of active and respectful dialogue to address various questions and concerns about this critical national issue. I thank Aetna and the 100 Black Men of Atlanta for creating the platform for an educational exchange on healthcare reform."

Dr. Satcher is director of The Satcher Health Leadership Institute and Center of Excellence in Health Disparities, which he established in 2006 at Morehouse School of Medicine as a natural extension of his experience in improving public health policy for all Americans and his commitment to eliminating health disparities for minorities, poor people and other disadvantaged groups.

"We are delighted to work together with Aetna on this very important and timely topic," said Milton H. Jones, Jr., Chairman and President, 100 Black Men of Atlanta, Inc. "Our relationship continues to provide opportunities to educate everyone on issues that are vital to the health and well being of our community."

Joining Dr. Satcher on the panel will be: Dr. Sheila Robinson, a cardiologist and president of the Georgia Medical Association; Dr. Kenneth Thorpe, professor and chair of the Department of Health Policy and Management at Emory University's Rollins School of Public Health; Dr. Rhonda Medows, commissioner of the Georgia Department of Community Health; and Mohit Ghose, head of public affairs for Aetna.

“Aetna has been a leading voice on how our country can achieve meaningful health care reform,” said Cynthia Follmer, Aetna’s local market president for Georgia. “Our goal is to get everyone covered, improve the quality of health outcomes, and provide better value for each dollar spent on health care in America. We are very pleased to help present this important dialogue.”
